Introducing our new associates.

Important members of our team.

It is with great pleasure that we welcome Alana Kalinowski, Charles Haché and Nick Doyle. Alana is working in our Fredericton office while Charles and Nick are working in our Saint John office.

Alana obtained her law degree from the University of New Brunswick and was called to the New Brunswick Bar this summer. Prior to joining Cox & Palmer as an associate, Alana worked with our firm as a summer student and a student-at-law. She will be building her practice in the litigation field and is a member of the firm's insurance practice group.

Prior to becoming an associate, Charles was an articling student with us and will continue to grow his client relationships while working with our commercial litigation and intellectual property lawyers. Charles was the recipient of various academic awards while studying at the University of New Brunswick and enjoys volunteering in the community.

Nick obtained a Bachelor of Arts in Greek and Roman Studies at Carleton University. He has a general legal practice with a focus on litigation and will gain knowledge by working closely with our experienced litigation lawyers. In his spare time, Nick enjoys writing novels and volunteers as the Vice President of AIDS New Brunswick.

It's great to have you with us!
